MEMORANDUM FOR:

MR. JOHN D. EHRLICHMAN

FROM:

THE PRESIDENT

I read a very interesting poll by the Cambridge Research people in which they made the point that people who live in homes that they own tend to take a much more conservative view on public issues than people who rent.

I think this has significant consequences as far as our own programs are concerned. Whenever possible we should direct our programs in ways that they will appeal to homeowners who, of course, make up about 70% of the nation's electorate. Politically, of course, we should be sure that candidates have the good sense to make their appeals in exactly the same direction. Rather than having blanket mailings, for example, to everybody in a District, people would be far better advised to concentrate on homeowners and hit the issues that appeal particularly to them.

I do not want this memorandum copied and distributed but I would like for you to discuss the matter with Bob Haldeman at your convenience, and also with George Bush. As ar as programs are concerned, I would like you to follow through in any way that you think would be appropriate to reach our homeowner constituency.
